

West Ready
With New Compromise

GENEVA (AP)—A new Western compromise offer was reported Sunday night as Big Four foreign ministers faced a make-or-break phase in their quest for a Berlin truce.

The compromise would counter the price the Soviet Union is asking for putting her name to the hard-bargained deal being negotiated to freeze the Berlin crisis until 1961 or 1962.

After days of hesitation the Western Allies shelved their differences and agreed over the weekend to move a little way toward meeting a key Soviet demand. The Russians have been insisting that the deadly hostile East and West German regimes be brought into direct negotiation with each other—either in a Pan-German commission or in some other form—to shape the future of their divided land during the term of any Berlin truce.

The American-British-French proposal, which West Germany has endorsed, will be placed before Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko Monday, when the Big Four meet first in secret, then in semipublic sessions.

U.S. Secretary of State Christian A. Herter probably will bare its details on behalf of the British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd and French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville. Its terms, as disclosed in broad outline by Western authorities, seem in some respects to run against the essential Soviet demand for East-West German negotiations.

Little Hope

Accordingly there is no great if Gromyko does reject it out of hand, the Big Four talks again will be at crisis point. And the side with the stronger nerves presumably will win out.

The Western counteroffer looks like a mosaic of compromise between conflicting East-West and inter-allied views:

1. It envisages a Big Four commission to preserve continuing responsibility for bringing about a German reunion and peace settlement.

2. It foresees various forms of East-West German contacts under the Big Four umbrella—but contacts that will fall short of full-scale negotiations of the kind the Russians propose. The two Germans could and would come together to discuss specific political and functional problems when ordered by the parent four-power body to do so.

3. It discards Russia's demand that the negotiating process on the wider problems of Germany should be part of any package deal on Berlin.

4. It amounts essentially to no more than a Western commitment that if a Berlin deal is concluded then Big Four talks on German unity and a peace pact will go forward along with limited forms of East-West German exchanges.

The formula, favored by Herter and Lloyd, represents a shift by the French, who have been opposing any tie-up between broad all-German issues and a Berlin truce. It also represents a softening of West German opposition to any form of political contacts with the East German Reds.

Five Killed
In Wreck
At Hazleton

HAZLETON (AP)—Five persons were killed and three others injured Sunday night in the collision of two autos and two tractor-trailers.

State police at the Hazleton Barracks said the accident occurred on Route 29, the Hazleton-Berwick Highway, near Sybertsville, a farm community about seven miles from Hazleton.

They were identified as Andrew P. Yudiski, about 40, the driver; his wife, Ruth, 34, and their daughter, Mary Ann, age 4 or 5, of RD 1, Berwick; Rosalie Ann Killian, 2, and Roland Killian Jr., 7 months, both of Shickshinny RD 1.

Dixie Killian, 17, fracture left arm, right femur, lacerations of right knee and forehead—serious condition.

Roland E. Killian, 13, broken jaw, possible fracture and concussion and cerebral concussion, serious. They are the parents of the Killian children.

Andrew P. Yudiski Jr., 6, lacerations of scalp and chin—fair. Also George Markunas, 42, RD 5, Bloomsburg, driver of the other car, and his wife, Stella, 24, both treated for lacerations and discharged.

Their daughter, Stella Marie, 18 months, suffered a possible skull fracture and internal injuries. She is in serious condition.

Leon T. Walter, 37, Milfordburg RD 2, a truck driver, suffered a back injury and internal injuries. He is in fair condition.

Plane Crashes
At E. Bangor

BANGOR — A small Piper Cub airplane crashed and overturned on the farm of Clayton Oyer, along the East Bangor - Mount road at 8 p.m. yesterday.

The plane was piloted by James A. Bath, a resident of Sacramento, Calif. He was carrying one passenger, Henry A. Hoover, from South Bend, Ind. Neither of the men were injured in the crash.

The two men had left the Dutchess Airport in Poughkeepsie, N.Y., and were headed for the Allentown-Bethlehem-Easton Airport.

While flying over the Mount Bethel and East Bangor terrain the plane ran into heavy rain and fog.

The plane radio also failed to work and they were forced to attempt a landing.

After circling several times a landing was made but soft ground caused the plane to flip over, observer reported.

Joseph LaPenna, a resident along the East Bangor-Mount Bethel road, noticed the plane circling and went to investigate with his son and Ray Messenger.

Messenger of East Bangor, drove the two accident victims to the Allentown Airport later in the night. The pilot and his passenger had originally started out from Cape Cod, Mass.

Communist Revolt, Army
Mutiny Break Out At Oil
Center In Northern Iraq

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP)—A pro-Communist revolt and army mutiny at Kirkuk, busy oil center in northeastern Iraq, was reported Sunday to have resulted in near civil war and hundreds of casualties.

The outbreak brought from Iraqi Premier Abdel Karim Kassem an angry declaration that "we will settle accounts" with the "worse of the nation's scoundrels" and Communists and mutineers. It was his strongest declaration yet.

Press reports in Cairo and Damascus, capitals of Gamal Abdel Nasser's United Arab Republic, said fighting started Wednesday while Iraq was still celebrating the July 14 anniversary of Kassem's 1958 anti-royalist revolution, and that clashes were still going on. The U.A.R. press described the fighting as near civil war.

But Ahmed Saleh Abdi, Iraqi military governor, in a Baghdad broadcast minimized the scope of armed clashes and said a normal situation had been restored.

He said "some incidents disturbing to the peace" occurred and "these led to attacks on, and damage to, certain places" in Kirkuk.

Press Reports
U.A.R. press reports said local army and police units in Kirkuk, a city of approximately 70,000, about 150 miles north of Baghdad, fought with Communist demonstrators on Wednesday and 27 persons were killed and 150 injured.

The local authorities had about regained control, these reports said, when the 2nd brigade of the 2nd army division mutinied, killed the deputy division commander, blew up bridges and seized strategic points in and around the city.

The bodies of at least 15 persons, including the commander, Turcoman tribesmen and leading local personalities, were reported hanged or dragged through the streets.

The reports said there were incidents elsewhere in Iraq. On the eve of the July 14 anniversary, Kassem slapped down the Communists by reorganizing his Cabinet and giving no places to known card-carrying Reds, though some fellow travelers were included.

He referred to the Kirkuk disorders Sunday in a speech before the altar of the Catholic Church of Saint Mary in Baghdad.

Roland E. Killian, 13, broken jaw, possible fracture and concussion and cerebral concussion, serious. They are the parents of the Killian children.

Steel Strike
Negotiations
To Resume

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Federal mediators renew efforts Monday to get the five-day-old nationwide steel dispute off center. The strike has idled most of the country's steel mills, half a million Steelworkers and 35,000 employees of allied industries.

The Steelworkers have been losing nearly 70 million dollars a week in wages since the strike started. Also lost is an estimated 300,000 tons of ingot steel production each day, which amounts to about 300 million dollars worth of business a week.

These figures do not include the wages and business losses resulting from the furloughing of some 35,000 employees of railroads, coal mines, iron ore mines, ore boats and other industries that depend on steel firms for business.

Joseph F. Finnegan, director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, is scheduled to meet in New York Monday morning with chief industry negotiator R. Conrad Cooper and his aides.

Afternoon

In the afternoon, Finnegan has slated a session with President David J. McDonald of the United Steelworkers of America and his assistants. No joint industry-union bargaining sessions are scheduled.

The strike began at midnight last Tuesday. Finnegan, who met with both sides last Wednesday, said he didn't think the strike was "susceptible to easy or early solution."

President Eisenhower has been receiving daily reports on the situation from Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell.

The President said last week he would not use the Taft-Hartley Act to force reopening of the mills unless the nation's health or safety is in peril. He added that such conditions "are clearly not here at the moment."

The union has demanded a wage hike and better fringe benefits. Industry has refused to give in to these union demands because it says they would hike labor costs and steel prices and tend to inflate the nation's economy.

The union contends the companies can grant wage hikes without increasing prices. Steelworkers' wages averaged $3.10 an hour before the strike.

Meantime, in Washington, Rep. Chester Bowles (D-Conn.) suggested Sunday that the steel strike be settled with a $15-a-ton cut in steel prices, leaving wages where they are.

But first, Bowles said in an ABC-TV interview — "College News Conference" — President Eisenhower should set up a fact-finding body to clear "the fog of propaganda" that has left people confused about the basic issues.

Needed

What is needed, he said, is to "really get at the facts that people say are available, but I don't think they are."

Other members of Congress also called for action by a presidential fact-finding body.

In another TV interview, Sen. Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn.) said that because productivity in the steel industry has been increasing steadily a wage increase can be paid without boosting steel prices.

Kefauver said each wage increase in the past usually has been accompanied by a price increase for steel products that amounted to more than twice the boost in wages. At the same time, he said, the industry keeps up its prices even when production falls sharply.

Appearing with Rep. Emanuel Celler (D-NY) on a program filmed for New York stations, Kefauver said his antitrust subcommittee will resume shortly an investigation of the steel industry and its pricing policies.

Washington (AP)—National output in the first quarter of this year was reported Sunday by the Commerce Department to have reached a rate exceeding 470 billion dollars a year. This was three billion more than had been estimated previously.

The new figures suggested that second-quarter production, on which the first official estimate will appear early next week, may have reached a rate of 482 billion dollars annually or more.

The rapidity of the business recovery shown by the revised figures makes it a probability—rather than an outside possibility—that the American economy will pass the half-trillion-dollar production rate in the last quarter of 1959.

As recently as two months ago most government economists had not expected the 500-billion mark would be reached until the middle of 1960.

The target could be missed, however, if the steel strike lasts so long that factories run out of their stockpiles.

Castro Expected To Retain
Premier's Position In CubaFire Ruins
Three Art
Collections

COLUMBUS, Ga. (AP)—Fire destroyed three art collections in a Columbus Museum Saturday night. The arsonists—apparently thrill-seeking vandals—left six swastikas painted on the walls as their calling cards.

Similar swastikas, symbol of Hitler's Nazi regime, have been scrawled on outer walls of two Jewish houses of worship in this west Georgia city since Wednesday night.

Police had no definite clues. "We've really got a job on our hands," detective Lt. B. F. McGuffey said Sunday.

The destroyed art collections were valued at more than $15,000. A preliminary estimate placed damage to the two-story, stucco building—the Columbus Museum of Arts and Crafts—at $5,000.

Feelings

McGuffey said authorities feel the three Columbus incidents are merely cases of vandalism and do not have any serious racial significance, such as the dynamiting of a Jewish temple in Atlanta Oct. 12, 1958. That blast caused nearly $100,000 damage and led to the indictment of five men. One man has been acquitted and charges apparently dropped against another.

But Atlanta authorities said last month they intend to bring the other three to trial later.

"This—the Columbus cases—looks more like somebody out on a thrill spree," said McGuffey. But he declined to speculate that the swastikas and fire were the work of excitement-hungry teenagers.

"It could have been anybody, any age," he said. How the arsonists gained entry to the building has not been established. McGuffey said police found one door which could have been opened with a knife without leaving any signs of forced entry. Or someone could have remained hidden in the museum when it closed at 5:30 Saturday afternoon.

Firemen, summoned about 11:15 p.m. by an automatic alarm system, had to break open a door to get inside.

McGuffey said the swastikas at the museum and the two Jewish houses of worship were similar — "it's a possibility they were done by the same persons."

Swastikas were splashed on the Shearith Israel synagogue late Friday or early Saturday with red paint and the words "Heil Hitler" were scrawled on the back door. Wednesday night the Nazi crosses were made with yellow paint on the Temple Israel.

Get In Presidential Race

WASHINGTON (AP)—The nation's governors, who may have a great deal to say about the outcome, generally are playing hard to get in the scramble for 1960 presidential nomination support. Of 45 governors who responded to an Associated Press canvass, 24 said it is too early to commit themselves to any potential candidate in the nomination conventions now a year away.

Among 14 Democrats willing to take a public position, the governors of Connecticut, Massachusetts and Wyoming said they prefer Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass.).

Most Likely
Gov. Gaylord A. Nelson of Wisconsin named Kennedy, Adlai E. Stevenson and Sen. Hubert Humphrey (D-Minn.) as among the most likely nominees, without choosing among them. Gov. Albert D. Rosellini of Washington added Sen. Stuart Symington (D-Mo.) to this list without stating any preference among the four.

Gov. James T. Blair Jr. of Missouri said he is for Symington and has no other choices. Gov. Orville L. Freeman of Minnesota supports Humphrey. Gov. Ralph G. Brooks of Nebraska said he is for Stevenson, twice the party's presidential nominee.

"I would not be surprised, however, if the nominee were Symington," Brooks said. "But if there is a deadlock, Stevenson would move in."

Gov. A. B. (Happy) Chandler of Kentucky is himself an aspirant for the nomination, as are Govs. G. Mennen Williams of Michigan and Robert B. Meyner of New Jersey. Unlike the others, who declined to express an opinion, Chandler said he believes Stevenson will wind up as the nominee.

Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas has the support of his home state's Gov. Price Daniel. Govs. S. Ernest Vandiver of Georgia and Orval E. Faubus of Arkansas support Sen. Richard B. Russell of Georgia, who hasn't indicated that he is running.

Cabinetmen
Turn Down
Resignation

HAVANA (AP)—Fidel Castro, Cuba's boss, was generally expected Sunday to return to his job as premier or to hand-pick a successor who would carry out his directives.

The revolutionary chief-tain resigned Friday night in a move that forced Manuel Urrutia out of the presidency on charges of near treason.

The Cabinet, meeting for the first time under a newly designated president, Osvaldo Dorticos Torrado, cleared the way late Saturday for Castro to resume the premiership. It refused to accept his resignation.

But Castro may not want to go back to the job. He has often said the premiership took up too much of the time that he would like to devote to the revolution—and especially to his pet project, the reorganization of Cuban agriculture.

Standstill Government
Until Castro makes up his mind—and he often is slow in such matters—Cuba has a standstill government. The Cabinet and President are not likely to make any important decisions until they know what the rebel chieftain is going to do.

Most Havana newspapers editorially applauded the Castro coup d'état by television in which he lambasted Urrutia.

But the conservative Diario de la Marina, which often has been critical of Castro made no comment. Instead, it printed a small front-page box entitled "Word of the Day."

It quoted the words of Benito Mussolini: "Submission. What a word. Nevertheless, what is the only refuge left for me."

The paper, following a blast from Castro, recently stopped publishing its column signed by "Volcano," one of the sharpest critics of Castro politics.

Castro's strong words about Urrutia have found strong support among the masses of Cuban people, but the reaction in some middle and upper classes has been adverse. Some businessmen, who decline to be identified by name, said Castro's attack was "unnecessarily vulgar."

One of the charges flung at Urrutia was that he was collecting the same salary—10,000 pesos a month ($10,000 at the official rate)—as deposed President Fulgencio Batista. Casgo said Urrutia had failed to cut his salary after Cabinet ministers had done so.

One of President Dorticos' first acts was to announce that he had trimmed his own salary to 2,500 pesos a month and would continue to live in his first time apartment. For the first time the president will not be living in the presidential palace that was completed in 1912. Dorticos said palace expenses would be trimmed by 1,200,000 pesos a year.

There was no indication that Urrutia would answer Castro's charges. He remained in seclusion at his brother-in-law's beautifully guarded home at nearby Bayta. Dorticos told newsmen he thought Urrutia would remain in Cuba, and if he did he would be given the protection he desired.

Castro charged that Urrutia posed as "the champion of anti-communism" at a time when Maj. Pedro Luis Diaz Lanz, former chief of the air force, has accused Castro of being a Communist. Urrutia, a moderate 56-year-old former judge, once freed Castro from prison during Batista's rule and had to go into exile.

Dorticos, a 40-year-old lawyer who has worked unobtrusively in the revolutionary regime since last January, told newsmen Saturday night, "I most certainly am not (a Communist) and neither is the government."

Police announced late Saturday night the arrest of 23 persons in Havana who were alleged to be part of a band of 150 engaged in smuggling arms into Pinar del Rio, the westernmost province. More arrests were expected.

Family Of Eight Rescued In Desert

MOAB, Utah (AP)—A family of eight—including six children aged 4 to 12—was rescued Sunday after more than two days stranded in the hot southeastern Utah desert without food or water.

The family of Mr. and Mrs. Viri B. Scott of Murray, Utah, was trucked and flown to the Moab airport from the remote Country of Standing Rocks near the confluence of the Green and Colorado Rivers.

Scott said they survived by rationing a pint of water from the auto's radiator, eating some salmon egg fish bait, and digging into the dirt to keep out of the heat and sun.

"We are filthy dirty from dirt baths from our heads down," Scott said as relatives took him from the airport to their home to rest.

Cracked Voice

Speaking slowly so as to make his cracked voice audible, he said: "When two fliers reached us this morning the kids were bursting with laughter and then they started to cry—and so did we. . . I don't see how we survived as long as we did and I'm sure we couldn't have made it through today. . . Prayer and the Lord helped us. . ."

Scott said he and his wife and children had no food nor water from the time they left Moab Friday at 7 a.m. until two Civil Air patrol fliers landed in the rugged area and hiked to them Sunday about 9 a.m.

After the fliers reached them, a pickup truck finally negotiated the rough uranium prospector's road and took them between five and 10 miles to a point where two other planes landed. From there they were flown to Moab.

The point where they were stranded is described as about 40 air miles southwest of Moab in the wild, desolate and deeply channeled rock country through which the Green and Colorado Rivers snake until they meet near Cataract Canyon.

Breathtaking View

The Scotts left Friday morning, planning a drive to Dead Horse Point. This is a high bluff which affords a breathtaking view of the convolutions of the Colorado River gorge.

But Scott said they took a couple of wrong turns and became lost on what is known as Shaler Trail. This is a former cow trail widened to jeep width in recent years for the use of uranium prospectors.

Scott said they drove about 30 miles, broke the car's radiator and lost most of the liquid from it. But they continued driving until they broke the crank case oil pan.

He said, "We survived by keeping cool under the dirt, drinking water—about a pint from the radiator, one spoonful every 2½ hours. All we had to eat was some salmon eggs and we tried to eat cactus but our mouths were so dry we couldn't swallow it. . . We gave the children the radiator water after trying to purify it by straining it several times. . . It had a permanent type antiseptic in it—instead of the poisonous denatured alcohol type."

The children, he said, were "just grand" through it all. He said a doctor examining them at the airport said they were in better condition than should be expected after such an ordeal.

Scott is 36 years old. His wife, Laura, is 35. Their six children are:

Virlene, 12; Laurene, 10; Diane, 9; Bryon, 7; Duwayne, 5; and LeLand, 4.

Force on the North American continent.

Example

This outlay accounts for the alarm system and only for a fraction of the total cost of the whole continental air defense complex, which has been expanding for a decade as the Soviet threat increases and changes technologically.

As an example, the Defense Department will have invested in only two fiscal years—the one that ended June 30 and the one that started July 1—about $3,900,000 for warning system construction, the missiles, planes and ships deployed for use if the alarm is sounded, plus associated equipment.

Merely to operate the continental defense system costs more than 600 million dollars a year.

Spent, or obligated or planned for, expenditure of four of the major warning systems comes to a total of about $3,885,000,000, figures provided by the Defense Department and other records showed Sunday.

This includes: 600 million dollars for the Distant Early Warning Line—DEW Line—in the Canadian arctic; 285 million for the U.S. share of building the Pine-tree system along the area of the U.S.-Canadian border; two billion for the Semi-Automatic Ground Environment system—SAGE, which receives and automatically coordinates data from outer zones as well as closer in systems; one billion for the Ballistic Missiles Early Warning System—BMEWS, now being built.

Except for BMEWS, the other systems work only against manned bombers and would be useless against ballistic missiles.

Still to come is the Missile Defense Alarm System—MIDAS—based on the use of satellites carrying infrared radiation detectors to spot the firing of ballistic missiles within seconds of launching. It is the earliest, elementary development phase and may not be ready for from four to six years.

Henry Long, operator of radio station KDGQ at nearby Durango, who flew over the area reported "hundreds and hundreds of acres covered with gray ashes."

He said the blaze appeared under control except on two fronts where flames were creeping up ridges and canyons jutting off from the large chasm.

A spokesman for the National Park Service said the Mesa Verde fire apparently was set by lightning, Thursday or Friday, but it was Saturday before the flames became visible.

How you can help people with mental problems

Today, doctors say that 1 out of every 10 Americans has a serious mental problem. You probably come in contact with at least one such person every day—a friend, someone you work with, perhaps even a member of your own family.

This person desperately needs something that you alone can give—your understanding. Here's how you can give it.

First, remember the facts. Serious mental problems are quite widespread today. They're not rare. And they're not hopeless! In most cases, they respond well to modern medical treatment. Second, show the person with such a problem that you understand, sympathize and want to help.

As you do this—as you give your understanding to those with serious problems—learn to understand yourself, too! Learn how to keep your own emotional tensions from making life unhappy for you—and for those around you.

For valuable advice on what you can do about your tensions, send for the free booklet, "How To Deal With Your Tensions". Write: Box 2500, New York 1, New York.

Two Youths Kill For 'Big Time'

QUAKER, Mo. (AP)—A 13-year-old rural boy told authorities Sunday that he shot and killed a country storekeeper, beat a 17-year-old girl to death and critically wounded two other persons because he and his 14-year-old pal "wanted to go out and have a big time."

The dead were storeowner Lynn Barr, 57, of Quaker and Bobbie Lou Shipp of nearby Belgrade, Mo.

Washington County Sheriff Thomas B. Allen identified the young admitted killer as John Crump, and his companion as John Edward Davis, both of Huzzah, Mo., about 10 miles west of Quaker. The sheriff said Crump admitted both slayings.

Barr's wife, Vallie, 52, was cut down by two shotgun blasts and their daughter, Ella Jo, 16, was severely beaten. Both were listed in critical condition in Bonne Terre, Mo., Hospital.

Crump and Davis were being held without charge in Washington County Jail.

Allen said Crump told him the pair bought six or eight bottles of beer in a tavern near Huzzah Saturday night and drank them, then abandoned a car near Quaker and entered Barr's store.

There they ordered sandwiches and as Barr was preparing one Crump raised a 12-gauge, pump-action shotgun and shot Barr in the back of the head, the sheriff said.

He quoted them as saying they intended to get Barr's car. They ran to Barr's home nearby and ordered Mrs. Barr at gunpoint to hand over the car keys.

She refused and made a dash for the door. Crump told the sheriff he shot her twice, but she managed to stagger outside. He then proceeded to beat the two girls with the shotgun, inflicting fatal injuries on Bobbie Lou.

Crump and Davis fled on foot.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Barr attracted the attention of Hurlen Gilliam who was passing by. He called authorities.

The youths were captured a short distance away by Quaker residents Raymond E. Taylor and Sanford Gilliam who fired warning shotgun blasts over their heads. They offered no resistance.

Quaker is a crossroads community of 22 persons 75 miles southwest of St. Louis.

Interpreting The News Soviet Union Propaganda Includes American Pictures

VIENNA, Austria (AP)—This may come as a surprise to people in the United States. At a time of great international tension Soviet propaganda is featuring the smiling Americans.

Soviet propagandists are distributing pictures of prominent visiting Americans in smiling poses with Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev in the Kremlin.

Other pictures show President Eisenhower smiling and welcoming Soviet Deputy Premier Frol R. Kozlov in the United States. The pictures get wide distribution behind the Iron Curtain.

This is the same tactic the Communists used in 1955 at the time of the Geneva summit conference.

They plastered the satellites with pictures of President Eisenhower, smiling in the "Geneva Spirit," as he sat between Khrushchev and Nikolai Bulganin, at that time Soviet Premier, at Geneva.

The impression Moscow wanted to convey to its captive peoples was that everything was palsytasy between Washington and Moscow and there was no hope for liberation for restive peoples.

Moscow's new smiles campaign comes at a time when talk of another summit conference is in the air. The campaign is causing concern here among employees of the U.S. Information Agency, whose job is to combat Soviet propaganda in the Eastern European bloc.

Some Austrian anti-Communist editors also are asking whether Washington is aware of what those broad smiles may cost it eventually.

One Austrian editor declared privately: "Will Washington never learn?"

A USIA employee said he would like to make the same remark "but I have to work for a living."

Here is an example of the way the Communists are conducting operation "smiling American."

The Austrian Communist party daily Volksstimme published a picture last week of a smiling Khrushchev ringed by a group of smiling U.S. state governors in the Kremlin.

"Over and over again, foreign guests are being received in the Kremlin. This time it's a group of American governors. And they also are received by genial host Khrushchev," the caption said.

Photos Published

There were other photos of this reception, published in Western newspapers, where few if any of the governors were smiling. But the Communists did not distribute these.

Nor did the Communists distribute in this area that part of photos at the Soviet fair in New York showing Vice President Richard M. Nixon looking on grimly while Eisenhower and Kozlov exchanged grinning greetings. A frowning Nixon had no place in the Soviet picture.

Nor did the Communists have any place in their propaganda shower of photos for a frowning Michigan Gov. G. Mennen Williams arguing with Kozlov in Detroit.

A USIA official said privately he hoped Nixon "wouldn't do much grinning" on his forthcoming visit to the Soviet Union but "would look grim, or at least serious, most of the time."

BEST ENGINES!
One of 7 Big Bests Chevy gives you over any car in its field

Open invitation to excitement, the Impala Convertible . . . and America's only authentic sports car, the Corvette.

You've got more to go on than our say-so: Every motor magazine has given Chevy's standard passenger car and Corvette V8's unstinted praise. SPORTS CARS ILLUSTRATED says it this way: " . . . surely the most wonderfully responsive engine available today at any price." And if you want the thrift of a six, you still get the best of it in a Chevy.

BEST ECONOMY Nodoubt about this: a pair of Chevy sixes with Powerglide came in first and second in their class in this year's Mobilgas Economy Run—getting the best mileage of any full-size car, 22.38 miles per gallon.

BEST BRAKES Not only bigger, but built with bonded linings for up to 66% longer life. Just to prove what's what, Chevy out-stopped both of the "other two" in a NASCAR*-conducted test of repeated stops from highway speeds.

*National Association for Stock Car Advancement and Research

BEST RIDE A few minutes behind the wheel will leave no doubt about this. MOTOR TREND magazine sums it up this way: " . . . the smoothest, most quiet, softest riding car in its price class."

BEST TRADE-IN Check the figures in any N.A.D.A.* Guide Book. You'll find that Chevy used car prices last year averaged up to $128 higher than comparable models of the "other two."

*National Automobile Dealers Association

BEST ROOM Official dimensions reported to the Automobile Manufacturers Association make it clear. Chevy's front seat hip room, for example, is up to 5.9 inches wider than comparable cars.

BEST STYLE It's the only car of the leading low-priced 3 that's unmistakably modern in every line. "In its price class," says POPULAR SCIENCE magazine, "a new high in daring styling."

Chances Of Negotiations On ESSTC's Strike Growing Dim

Contractor Wants Pickets Removed

CHANCES for any negotiations in the walkout at the East Stroudsburg State Teachers College projects deteriorated swiftly yesterday as J. J. Kline, contractor on the job, informed The Daily Record he would not meet with the union until all pickets are definitely withdrawn from the job sites.

Kline came to this decision late yesterday, he said after he was informed of alleged threats of suit voiced by union officials over the contract held between the Stroudsburg Building Trades Council and his firm.

In an earlier conversation with A. J. Caruso, head of the General State Authority which contracted for the building of the Women's Dormitory and the Science Building on the campus, the Daily Record learned he (Caruso) would attempt to mediate some sort of settlement so the work on the two buildings could continue.

Caruso said he had been told of the union's desires insofar as the jobs were concerned, but he said he could not at this time say whether or not these were really grievances since he did not know what was in the contract signed between Kline and the council.

Not Available
Wilbur Hall, president of the Council, was not available yesterday nor last night to comment on these new developments.

In relating a telephone conversation he had with Hall, Kline said Hall informed him it was not the entire council, but the laborers' business agent, and the steel workers business agent who brought the charges against the Kline firm.

Kline said during his conversation with Hall, the union head stated the union could put his firm out of business. Hall said this would happen unless he (Kline) paid more attention to his union matters, Kline added.

Kline told The Daily Record he has not employed a non-union worker for the past 15 years.

Dr. LeRoy Koehler, president of the college, said yesterday the buildings were vitally needed by the institution for the coming fall term. He said only one recitation room was available for the fall, and this was in Oakes Hall.

Unless more recitation space is made available, Dr. Koehler said the students would have to meet in lobbies, or any other available space. He added the college had been expecting to use the buildings, and the date for completion had been set by September.

The International Art Show continues to draw visitors to the Art Center. Several new members have joined as a result of this exhibition, officials report.

East Borough Youth Arrested For Setting False Alarm

EAST STROUDSBURG Police lodged Adam Bellis, 22, of 49 Howard St., East Stroudsburg, in Monroe County Jail early yesterday morning on a charge of setting off a false fire alarm.

Police said they were notified of the presence of a strange youth tampering with the alarm box by Mr. and Mrs. Harry Shepps, 243 Washington St., East Stroudsburg, just before 1 a.m. yesterday.

Upon investigating the complaint, Officers Harold Larrison and Ronald Zwalley said the alarm went off just as the suspect left the vicinity of the alarm box.

Receiving a description of the person from Mr. and Mrs. Shepps, the two officers began investigating in the area near the box and found Bellis lying on the ground in back of a small dog house.

He was taken to the Police Station where he confessed he set off the alarm. Police could get no reason for his setting off the alarm.

He was taken before Justice of the Peace Jack Wyckoff where bail was set at $500. He will be given another hearing today.

Prisoner Upsets Jail At Honesdale

IF MONROE County jail officials think they have trouble with a prisoner who five times since May 15 has inflicted injury upon himself and damage upon his cell, let them consider the case of Mario Marrero, 21-year-old Trenton, N. J. man in the Wayne County Jail.

Marrero has been nothing but trouble on three separate occasions this month in the jail at Honesdale.

He squeezed through an oversized food tray opening in a cellblock door July 4 and escaped until his capture four days later.

He flooded the jail and destroyed the furnishings in his cell last Wednesday, for no apparent reason. He plugged the toilet in his cell with a blanket and wadded toilet tissue in the sink drain, causing three inches of water throughout the jail before the water was turned off.

Sheriff Wallace G. Williams and Deputy Dudley Chapman, hoping Marrero would calm down, placed him in another cell.

Breaks Furniture
Shortly after midnight Thursday Marrero broke up the furniture in this new cell and smashed out three windows with a bed post.

He spent the rest of the night without his clothes sleeping on canvas in a padded cell.

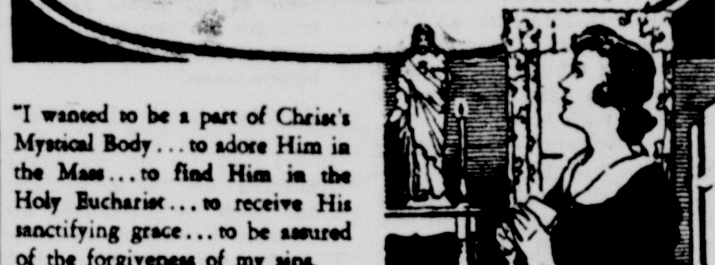

Friday the state police assisted the sheriff in taking Marrero back to Eastern State Penitentiary to resume serving a larceny sentence.

But chances are that Marrero may be back. He has waived hearings on eight charges and entered not guilty pleas to two others resulting from his activities during his four-day escape from freedom. These cases are pending before Wayne County Court and his presence probably will be required.

Here in Monroe County Sheriff Jacob Altomere has instituted court proceedings to have James Smith, 21, Baltimore, Md., removed to a mental institution. Smith has set fire to his cell, cut his wrists and wrestled with Stroudsburg policemen called to help deputies return him to his cell.

"Why I had to embrace the CATHOLIC Faith"

"I wanted to be a part of Christ's Mystical Body... to adore Him in the Mass... to find Him in the Holy Eucharist... to receive His sanctifying grace... to be assured of the forgiveness of my sins."

"...I wanted the Holy Spirit to fill every bit of me from the top of my head to the tips of my toes... to slip my hand into my Father's and say 'Lead me, Lord'."

"...I wanted to learn about angels and saints and the Blessed Mother, and how to prepare for heaven; I wanted to receive the gifts of the Holy Spirit."

"I wanted to love God above all else, with my whole heart and soul and mind, and my neighbor as myself... and nowhere can I find the pattern so clearly shown and taught as in the Catholic Church."

These are not the words of a lifelong Catholic. They come from the heart of one who was told in childhood that Catholics are "ignorant and superstitious"... whose circle of friends included no Catholics... who was never exposed to the "coercion" of a Catholic priest or the influence of Catholic literature.

They are the heartfelt words of a genuinely religious and deeply sincere woman who has wandered down many byways in search of Christ's truth... and now finds peace and joy and certainty in the last place she looked—in the Catholic Faith. A convert!

To all who seek this same certainty, the Catholic Church says just one thing: "Investigate! Investigate! Investigate! Find out"

Fellowship Going To Puerto Rico

NEWFOUNDLAND — Jill Smith, 16-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Claude O. Smith, is the proud possessor of a plane ticket to San Juan, Puerto Rico.

Jill is a member of the group of 10 going to Puerto Rico as representatives of the Scranton District Methodist Youth Fellowship under the leadership of the Rev. Robert Germond, district director of youth activities.

The local miss is president of the Pocono Sub-district MYF, a position which entitles her to participate in the Puerto Rican adventure. And she's "just absolutely thrilled!"

The group will leave on July 24 from Idlewild Airport; and will return home August 3. They will spend the two weeks in San Juan, sight-seeing, and during the week will attend classes at a regular Methodist camp with other Puerto Rican youth.

Movies, hikes, mountain climbing, and exchanging ideas about "home" with their new friends will also be a part of the trip.

Jill will be a senior at Southern Wayne Joint School, this fall. She is a member of the Honor Society, the band and chorus, and is a cheerleader. She will serve as treasurer of the student council next term, having been elected to the council by the cheerleaders.

She will be president of the library club, and is a member of the Senior Tri-H-Y, the Future Homemakers of America, and the school dance band.

Last year's vice president of the Pocono Sub-district MYF, she is this year's president, and represents the sub-district in the Scranton District unit. She also served as president of the Greenwood-Newfoundland-South Sterling MYF.

This is the second year that the MYF has taken the trip to Puerto Rico to learn more about the young people on the island, and to dispense information to the islanders about the United States.

Solving Fiscal Mess

Weekend news dispatches from Harrisburg indicated House Speaker Hiram G. Andrews (D-Cambria) will press for a two percent across-the-board sales tax if the General Assembly cannot agree on a four percent selective sales levy.

The veteran legislator's proposal is similar to the one put forth in mid-June and again last week by The Daily Record.

The main difference is that we proposed a two percent sales tax covering everything but take-home food and articles already taxed by the state—cigarettes, gasoline, etc.

Speaker Andrews put forth the idea of a sales tax which would exempt industrial materials and cover everything else, including take-home food as well as clothing and other items not now covered by the present three and one-half percent levy.

"The two percent tax," he said, "might have less impact on many families than the four percent tax. Industry would not escape, because we would make it up through the corporate net income tax."

The 83-year-old representative saw chances increased for passing the two percent plan if the Philadelphia delegation continues its opposition to the four percent tax. His thoughts on this were not shared by Majority Leader Stephen McCann (D-Greene), however. The latter felt many of the 35-member Philadelphia bloc would oppose the tax on food purchased at stores.

Both Andrews and McCann were critical of the revolt which last week wrecked a compromise four percent sales tax bill approved by both Democratic and Republican caucuses. The revolt was staged by 15 Philadelphia Democrats on orders handed down by Congressman William J. Green, city Democratic chairman of Philadelphia.

Although in control of the House, the Democrats sought and received the support of at least 15 Republicans, and approval of the compromise seemed assured until the Philadelphians revolted. The GOP thereupon withdrew its support and brought on the threat of a "tax business" program from Democratic leaders.

The plan, which neither party wants because of its impact on industrial development of Pennsylvania, calls for increasing the corporate net income tax one percent, postponing the exemption for manufacturers from the capital stock tax and imposing an unincorporated net income tax on proprietors, partnerships, professional men and women and farmers.

Rather than add another heated issue to the already boiling pot, we feel the Democrats might better concentrate on cracking the whip over the Philadelphia delegation and bring it into line with the majority thinking. Pennsylvania is too big and its fiscal problems too pressing to allow one small bloc to dominate the Harrisburg scene.

The fact that Bill Green's constituents saw fit to send him back to Congress in the face of an indictment which hung over his head at the time, does not give him the right to dictate to Pennsylvania's Legislature.

The entire Commonwealth, we feel, would benefit if Boss Green's influence were confined to Philadelphia and Washington.

George Sokolsky Says...

Summit Puzzle

No matter how one analyzes the Russian pressure for a summit conference, it does not add up. The Geneva Conference could have reached some conclusion; it did not because obviously Khrushchev will not permit a conclusion to be reached except when he is present.

All the time that the last Geneva Conference was in session, he sabotaged it from the sidelines. Now that another Geneva Conference is in session, it will be interesting to see whether he can remain silent for the duration.

According to Frol Kozlov, the current Geneva Conference will propose an 18-month truce. The best hope for it is that the entire subject of Berlin will be postponed until 1961, which is a long way off.

Perhaps the Russians are hopeful that the 1960 election in the United States will bring Democrats into office and that they will fare better with a Democrat than with a Republican.

Surely, there can be no basis for such a treasonable thought. Kozlov must have learned that so far as Russia is concerned we are a united people.

There is a further weakness in Russian thought on the summit conference. It is based on the assumption that the President of the United States can do as he chooses.

Perhaps the Russians have reached that conclusion from Stalin's experience with Franklin D. Roosevelt at Tehran and Yalta. Roosevelt always went off on his own and managed to get the Senate to go along with him.

Senator Arthur Vandenberg who was the Republican leader in foreign affairs during Roosevelt's Administrations, went along with the President although he had started his career as a Middle Western isolationist. In fact, except for a few irreconcilables, Roosevelt had little trouble with his Republicans.

However, times are different now and no President can do many of the things Roosevelt did or assume such great national obligations as Roosevelt did at Yalta. It would not be tolerated today.

What a summit conference entails for a President of the United States is a constant pressure on the part of the Russians for an immediate decision on specific matters which are beyond the authority of the President to make without "the advice and consent of the Senate." And when a matter involves Senatorial consent, it also involves open debate and free discussion in the press.

Roosevelt had a war to help him. Eisenhower does not have equal power of secrecy and censorship. As a matter of fact, the American people regard indirect censorship as excessive and there can be little question but that sooner or later the chairman of some Congressional committee will make himself a reputation by exposing the free use of such rubber stamps as "Classified," "Secret," etc.

This can be and undoubtedly is a form of censorship not authorized by an act of Congress but characteristically retained by military men and other officials since war days.

Khrushchev has sent two emissaries here to try out the American people, Mikoyan did quite well in his public relations although he left no permanent impression behind him, except that as a salesman, he tried to over-sell his product.

Kozlov did not do so well in his public relations, perhaps because he had never been here before and he is not a particularly clever person. He also believes in Soviet propaganda, namely, that a capitalist will do anything for a dollar—sell his mother into prostitution, pervert his own children and betray his own country.

In his private conversations with businessmen, he has been offering more than he has to give and some of his barter promises are too ridiculous except for the most naive businessmen.

However, the Bolshoi Ballet was a success and it is presumed that the Moscow State Orchestra will be a success. What such performances do for peace, it is yet to be seen. Thus far, Gromyko seems not to be affected by them.

None of this people-to-people business has produced any practical results. Soviet Russia proceeds on its imperialist way and will not change its few well-dressed capitalists world program because a few well-dressed capitalists applauded a ballet dancer or laughed at one of Mikoyan's jokes.

The solid business of averting war is still ahead of both countries and will have to be based on something more solid than a male dancer jumping in the air.

With Walter Winchell On Broadway

The People of the City They are the eight million. An impressive statistic. A montage of faces, faces, faces.

A sad and gaudy night. You can detect a tragic novel in some faces. And the singing wonder of youth full beauty in others.

They are the people, young and old. The splendid savages. It has required billions of years to carve the shape of their hands. There is classic poetry in the soaring beauty of a skyscraper. And a true artistic masterpiece in the shimmering lights of Broadway. The material wonders, however, merely serve as the scenery for an epic drama. The people are its stars. Individuals form the basis of cities as well as empires. Our town reflects their dreams and accomplishments. Their daily routines represent its everlasting pulsebeat. And their biographies are its history.

They are the Broadway-lites whose lives are sketched with bright lights and they are afflicted and the darkest shadows, with strange ironies: The famous are frequently friendless, cynics compose sentimental ballads and stars rarely achieve the security attained by the corner newsstand proprietor. Those who entertain millions are frequently gripped by the melancholy which stems from the constant struggle to gain and retain success.

Broadway is a wild fairland where the law of the jungle prevails. Success is King and fame is Paradise. And those who wear stars for crowns often discover that the heights are extremely lonely.

They are the nightclubbers who have acquired a desperate gaiety. Frantically clutching for fragments of happiness. Searching for amusement in a vanishing dream. Some visit joints solely to display emblems of wealth. There are insomniacs who find a certain contentment in innocuous chatter. Headwaiters have an enameled charm. They function like actors in a well-rehearsed play. Lovers are mooned on an island of enchantment. Torch-carriers are lost in an alcoholic haze. Visiting movie stars are equipped with personal spotlights. Inevitable habits are basically lonely. They squander hours searching for the warmth of companionship and discover the cold emptiness that is called boredom.

These missiles will have the capability of blasting Moscow and numerous other key targets in western Russia. The 100 Thors are approximately double the number originally planned for Britain. This increase is due to President de Gaulle's refusal to sign a ballistic missile agreement unless given complete control over their nuclear warheads. That is barred by the Atomic Energy Act.

Under the missile pact signed by the U. S. and Britain last year, nuclear warheads can be employed only with the approval of both countries.

It will be at least another 18 months before the U. S. has built up an operational ballistic missile strength equal to that which Britain will possess by next January 1.

There are two reasons for that. (1) Up to now, the main emphasis has been on developing the more readily produced shorter range missiles, such as the Thor and the Army's Jupiter. Britain and other NATO allies are strategically located for the most effective use of these nuclear weapons as a deterrent against "strategic force."

(2) For the U. S., the principal ballistic missile is the intercontinental range (5,000 miles) missile of the Atlas and Titan type. The former won't become operational until late 1960, and the latter sometime in 1961.

Built-In Safety—While the U. S. and Britain had no difficulty coming to an understanding on doubling the latter's IRBM capability, they are still pondering a highly costly problem.

This is a British proposal to build underground missile bases at a cost of hundreds of millions of dollars which would largely come from the U. S.

The British strongly favor such underground bases as safeguards against Russian missile attacks. They are stressing the vulnerability of their surface bases where the 100 Thors are being placed—at Feltwell, Hemswell, Driffield and a converted airfield in central England.

The IRBMs at Feltwell are already operational.

Pending determination of the issue of underground bases, the Thors are being housed in surface shelters. For firing, these shelters are quickly removed and the IRBMs rise automatically to a vertical position.

At the express request of the British, the U. S. has agreed to permit them to announce certain classified information about built-in safety devices.

Foremost among the significant disclosures the British will make is that the Thor is equipped with devices which prevent the nuclear warhead from being "triggered" until close to the target. Speed, specified course and distance are determining factors in "triggering" the warhead.

With these safety mechanisms, the IRBM virtually has to be over the target before it can detonate.

Major General W. H. Blanchard, commander of the U. S. Seventh Air Division, has custody of the nuclear warheads for the Thors being employed in Britain.

Under Pentagon plans, the Army's Jupiter will become operational in Italy sometime next year. Preparations call for 20 being replaced there, but this number may be increased. Initially these IRBMs will be manned by U. S. crews, with the warheads under U. S. control.

Also under negotiation are missile treaties with Turkey and Greece.

Eager Aspirant—Maryland's former Governor Theodore McKeldin is hot after the vacancy created by the Senate's refusal to confirm Lewis Strauss as Commerce Secretary.

President Eisenhower still has made no decision on this cabinet job.

McKeldin spent a half hour urging Vice President Nixon to go to bat for him with the President. Nixon was friendly, but made no commitments. He explained it would be necessary for McKeldin to discuss the matter with Maryland's two Republican senators.

This may not help McKeldin, as Senator John Marshall Butler is making no secret he does not favor McKeldin as Strauss' successor.

Third Place Brings Credit

Bangor's Yellowjackets failed to retain their class "B" Pennsylvania American Legion title on Friday night in Pittsburgh.

But, the famed Bangor organization still managed to cover itself with credit at the Legion convention.

The Yellowjackets, seeking their third straight title, finished third behind the Milton-Williamsport and Tyrone units. Bangor missed the top prize by less than nine full points.

The winning Milton-Williamsport contingent rolled up 89,666 points, while second place Tyrone came in with 82,833 points. Bangor totaled 80,666 points, while second place Tyrone came in with 82,833 points. Bangor totaled 80,666 points. There are a possible 100 points.

Tyrone will be remembered as the organization that thrilled the large audience at the "Eastburg Highlights and Festival of Stars" at East Stroudsburg's Memorial Stadium several years ago.

The Tyrone unit is also one of Tom Waring's favorite organizations. Tom is known by virtually everyone in Monroe County and is a resident of Shawnee-on-Delaware.

Leonard Kranendonk, one of the featured performers at tonight's concert at the Mount Pocono Methodist Church, is also a resident of Shawnee-on-Delaware.

Leonard first studied music in Holland where it is a required subject for all students. He did nothing more about it seriously until a member of his Church Choir, Elsie Lemk-nill, encouraged his taking voice lessons.

He later married the choir member and went on to win several scholarships including four years at the Wisconsin College of Music, where he studied under Adele Stroh-meyer, who is still on the faculty there. His family set-led in Wisconsin when Leonard was nine years of age.

Entering a Wisconsin state contest for singing, he won the grand prize, an all expense paid trip to New York for three weeks with introductions to many famous people.

An audition was arranged with Fred Waring and Leonard has been a regular ever since 1938. He is a baritone soloist.

On the concert program he will sing the following selections: "Dedication" by Robert Franz; "The Hills of Home" by Oscar J. Fox; "Countin' My Blessings" by Tom Waring; "Prologue from the opera Pagliacci" by Leoncavallo; "Without A Song" by Youmans; "A Spirit Flower" by Campbell Tipton; "Nemico Della Patria" (from Opera Andrea Chenier), by Giordano and Sailormen" by Jacques Wolfe.

Thors Bolster Britain

Washington — England is now rapidly being made the most powerful ballistic missile strong hold in the West.

Around 100 Air Force Thor missiles, with an intermediate range of 1,500 miles and armed with nuclear warheads, are being employed on four strategically located British bases.

Sixty of these IRBMs will be operational by the end of this year.

These missiles will have the capability of blasting Moscow and numerous other key targets in western Russia.

Civil Rights, Abbreviated

The "skelton" civil rights bill which squeaked through a subcommittee of the Senate Judiciary Committee this week is not all that the Administration asked, and it is far from being what Senator Douglas of Illinois suggested.

It is approximately the same modest program that Senator Lyndon Johnson, Democratic leader in the upper house and a Texan by birth, residence and politics, laid out on Jan. 20. The Administration plan included an explicit endorsement of the Supreme Court integration decision of 1954 as "the supreme law of the land."

It proposed also Federal aid to state schools in achieving integration and it called for the extension of the life of the Civil Rights Commission to September, 1960. Senator Douglas denounced the Johnson plan as an "ostrich-like" response to an urgent national problem.

Some Senators were willing to bring up the "skelton" bill in the hope that it could be improved in the full committee and on the floor of the Senate. Certainly neither party in either House can safely ignore this measure. It is not politically expedient any more to be nationally known as an exponent of antediluvian notions of the rights of man.

The Pennsylvania Story

Strike Clobbers State

By Mason Denison
Harrisburg—Pennsylvania is really being clobbered by the steel strike.

No other state is expected to feel the slap—the battering ram effectiveness—of the nation's steel strike.

Reason: Steel is Pennsylvania's basic industry.

How much so? Look at the facts:

In the primary metals field, some 275,000 Pennsylvania workers are employed. Of this number roughly 155,000 are involved in the steel work stoppage.

Look at it another way: One of every six Pennsylvania workers employed in factory jobs is a steel worker.

But there is still greater impact. Idleness in the steel mills of the Keystone State spells idleness in allied and subsisting industries.

For example: The Pennsylvania Railroad already has laid off more than 6,000 workers.

Trace it on down the line and the full impact insofar as Pennsylvania alone is concerned becomes painfully obvious.

Again to illustrate the point: The State Department of Labor and Industry estimates that if the strike continues a month, some 200,000 Pennsylvania workers will be idled.

But the steel strike is clobbering Pennsylvania in another way.

EUROPEAN INFLUENCE makes a deep impression in American styling for men. "Continental" touches here include peaked lapels, cutaway jacket, squared shoulders, tapered cuffless trousers and bolder patterns such as minute wine, pearl and charcoal bounds' tooth check.

Maybe Men Will Have A Waistline, Too; Continental Influence Felt At Showing

By Bobby Westbrook

New York—So men say that their fashions don't change? Well, I've got news for you, boys, they do so. They change with all the monumental speed of a glacier. However, this ice age may be ending because the new Continental look for men in one year is running neck and neck with the classic Ivy League look and both of them are beginning to press the American Natural look which is still in the lead.

Now a year is a long time for a horse race, but it is a very short time for a new fashion in men's wear to gain such popular acceptance. The commentator for the men's fashion show given by the American Institute of Men and Boys' Wear Inc., referred to glibly as the AIMBW, confessed that he had never seen anything like it.

He also confessed that this was not a fashion show but a merchandising show — not setting fashion trends but presenting styles already ordered by the retail stores throughout the country for Fall sale. However there was fashion news in the very fact that the AIMBW was giving the show at all. It's the first full scale men's fashion show in the N.Y. Couture Groups 16 years of national press week showings. One lone designer paved the way last year, and the fashion editors' reporting of his preference for the Continental look may have speeded up its rise to popularity.

We'll be doing a full feature on men's fashions complete with pictures later but men while the men and boys may like to know that the Continental look has affected even the American Natural which is slimmer than ever. The big color news is in the bronze, brown and olive green tones. The derby is coming back into popularity. There's even a new headpiece for men, a combination of hat and cap, known as the hap, with a brim fading away to nothing in back so that when a man turns up his coat collar he doesn't knock his hat down over his eyes.

Material At $156 a Yard
A man might have flipped his lid entirely if he had stayed to watch the Samuel Winston showings which followed the AIMBW luncheon. There were several dresses made from material that cost $156 a yard wholesale!

The Winston show for most women is like going to an art gallery, fabulous things to look at but with no thought of buying them. However, there are women who buy Winston clothes. When he was showing the buyers his collection—even using as little as possible of that $156 a yard stuff, the dress will sell at well over $1,000—one of the buyers from Texas asked without batting an eye "And how many colors will that come in?"

Actually his collection stopped the show for the buyers, primarily because of the material. Besides that re-embroidered lace job with velvet inlays, he uses a gossamer wool mesh called "garique" (I hope), and a lacey wool knit called "chan-ka", cloth of gold in men's wear weaves, and a heavy silk woven to look like Russian broadtail.

His designer, Roxane, has come up with some wonderful designs for these fabulous fabrics. She uses a new technique of blending the bias with the straight of the fabric to produce pear shaped skirts and her trumpet sleeve which flares widely yet folds easily under a coat.

Larry Aldrich just won't give up. Although his collection features the fitted, normal waistline, as one of last year's leading exponents of the chemise, he couldn't resist showing a few loose dresses which he termed, wistfully I thought, "avant garde", including a contoured two-piece dress blousing to a close hip yoke.

Anne Fogarty's love of the waistline dominated her collection. Four of her basic black dresses are being used in the Moscow showings to demonstrate how they can be changed with the use of accessories.

Monte-Sano and Pruzan by some miracle managed to make fashion news, even on the last day of showings, which really takes some doing with fashion-jaded editors. He did it with his "kite" coats with the shoulder and sleeve in one to give almost a great hat look; with his butterfly sleeves; the longer jackets—as long as 27 inches; his fish net blouses under cocktail suits; and blouses whose cowl collars form an Indian Purdah veiling for the

Just Between Us—

—By Bobby Westbrook

In the closing days of National Press Week, fashions begin to look funny. You find yourself wondering, a little hysterically, how women dare to sit down in these all-over embroidered dresses without scattering bugle beads all over the place. But, sick as you are of clothes, it still comes as somewhat of a shock to see girls wearing none at all.

As the guests of Schiffler, we had dinner at the Latin Quarter last night and they certainly achieved some spectacular effects. In one number, set in a harem, a genius summoned forth the famous beauties of the past—including the Empress Josephine, wearing her tiara in the oddest place.

The Andrews sisters sang, and the most of the fashion editors and lace men are of the right age to get right with them in their nostalgic numbers, and to forgive them the chins beginning to sag and the necks growing crepey and the waistlines thickening, bitter reminders of the passage of time for all of us. Their singing, however is just as good as ever and reminded us that the "Apple Blossom Time" we shared in common was a good time.

Blossom Time" we shared in common was a good time.

John Raitt in the songs he sang at the Diamond Dinner was able to establish that same warm rapport with his audience. He was the only thing the fashion editors lined up for — except the favors which the designers give away. They would have lined up for Carol Burnett, too, at the DuPont de Nemours, cocktail party, except for the fact that Carol had to rush away for a performance in "Once Upon a Mattress".

Her take-off on a junior high school graduation was so funny but so true that it made me homesick. By this time we are all feeling a little jaded with everything: fine fashions, fine food and even fine entertainment. We begin to think wistfully of a breakfast of cold cereal instead of creamed chicken on poached eggs with strawberries, eaten in a housecoat; of flat heels with Bermudas and a beat-up shirt, not necessarily coordinated; and of people with something on their minds besides fun and fashions. Mostly of you, beloveds.

THE NEW ARRIVALS—
Our store has welcomed a number of interesting new arrivals. People, of course . . . but not real. Call them dolls, if you wish. I prefer to call them caricatures, so realistic and charming I can imagine collectors of all ages being quite enthralled by them.

Their frames, I think, must be wire, for they bend readily into a variety of shapes. But the tiny heads, with fantastic features are of plastic. Some wear glasses and many of the women wear large felt hats. In the collection are surgeons, with thermometers and the traditional white coat; bowlers, golfers, tennis players; dentists with forceps holding big, bloody teeth; lady artists, travelers, and numerous other interesting characters.

The traveler and artist are on my desk right this minute. The former wears a pleated skirt of bright orange, black and white. Her turtle neck sweater is bright yellow, her Garbo-type hat is green, and she is loaded! Over one arm is an orange and white striped hat box, and a black coat. In her arm are a tennis racket and a woolly dog with flickering eyes. The other hand is clutching a huge blue suitcase with an umbrella tucked through its straps. Typical? Typical! Haven't we all been in the same boat from time to time?

The lady artist is dressed in a smart red blouse with plunging neckline and a waistband that ties on the outside of chic, green felt clam diggers. Her shoes are red. In one arm is her blue palette with yarn splashes of bright color, and in her hand are brushes, also fashioned of yarn. Her "canvas" is giddily abstract.

Both dolls are priced at 2.50, although those with less detail are naturally less expensive. See them. They're imported . . . charming . . . and fun for old and young.

Newly arrived too are our Wyckoff Christmas cards—a marvelous selection from Rustcraft, Hallmark, Norcross and Yorkcraft. The latter are, of course, Pennsylvania Dutch in design, while the others cover a wide range of subjects in keeping with the holiday theme. Prices range from 1.00 to 5.00 box, but there are cute Brownie cards at 5c each.

One thing that many wise women are investing in is the Thoughtfulness Album by Hallmark, priced at 3.75. This lovely cover is loose leaf, and contains a number of pages that list special events and envelopes to hold the cards appropriate to these occasions. There is space for the recording of birth dates . . . anniversaries . . . holidays . . . and religious dates, when one may wish to remember friends. Seventeen all-occasion cards are included.

Too early to buy Christmas cards? Of course it isn't. If you get this expenditure out of the way early, just think how much extra gift money you'll have at hand when Santa begins preparing for your pocket books' sleighride. Our Christmas Card Albums are in. Select your personalized cards now from these sample books. Priced from 40 for 1.95 with names imprinted.

'The Daily Investor'

Performance Important

By William A. Doyle
International Investment Analyst

Q. Quite often, when advice is given, the advisor will tell you to invest in a company with potential for the future and "good management." I would like to know how a person can spot good management.

A. That's a good question — one that can't be answered by set rules and formulas. The only real yardstick (and it's an elastic one) is the company's performance.

Sum it up this way: What kind of a job has management done for the company?

From that point, you can take many, many things into consideration. So many, in fact, that it's almost impossible for the average investor to tell good management from bad management without doing a lot of reading and study on an individual company, its officers and competitive status in its industry.

When people discuss "good management," they are invariably talking about the high officials of the firm. The top brass can make or break any corporation.

Some hot-shot executives make headlines by their accomplishments. The names of others who are just as capable hardly ever appear in print.

It's not unusual to see the stock of a company take a sizable jump in price when a new, well-thought-of management team (or even one or two new top officers) moves in.

On the other side of the coin, a company may be well managed for years and years, or generations and generations, by the same group of people.

This is one of those things you can't pin down.

Q. The published quotations of stock exchange tables don't make much sense to me. The column showing the "net change" leaves me completely blank. Often, when I look up a stock's activities, the tables will show something such as this: "Open, 67; Close, 66; Net Change, minus 3 1/2."

As far as I'm concerned, the stock only dropped one point. What's the story? Can't the people who make up the tables add and subtract?

A. They can add and subtract. Don't fret about that. But they add and subtract from the previous day's closing price. The net change of a full day's trading is not the difference between the opening and closing prices.

It's the difference between today's closing price and the previous day's closing price.

In this case (with the stock closing at 66, off 3 1/2) you can easily figure that the last transaction in the stock in the previous day's trading was at 69 1/2 ($69.75) a share. Now that doesn't call for any higher mathematics, does it?

Q. Why is it so difficult (usually impossible) to get a prospectus on a common stock when a person is interested in buying some of that stock?

A. Because a prospectus is only available when securities are being sold as a new offering or a secondary distribution. A prospectus is a boiled-down version of the registration statement that must be filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission when there is a new offering or secondary distribution.

Doyle will answer only representative letters of general interest in his column. He cannot answer phone queries.

State Working On Plans For Education

HARRISBURG (AP)—The Lawrence administration reports it is "seriously considering" a special session of the General Assembly to look into the state's educational problems without the distraction of other legislative issues.

Walter W. Giesey, secretary of administration, made the disclosure Saturday as pressure mounted for more school aid beyond the $85 million dollars recommended in Lawrence's budget.

Rep. H. G. Andres, Democratic speaker of the House, supported the idea, saying the school problem "will never be handled the way it should be, get the consideration it should, when it has to compete with other matters for attention."

Lots Of Work

Giesey declined specific comment on the proposal, but said "there's a great deal of ground-work to be done."

But Andres suggested that the governor appoint a special citizens advisory council on the school problem as a prelude to a special session of the Legislature.

Legislative leaders of both parties are in agreement that schools need more financial aid.

The 176 million dollar compromise tax program which collapsed at the last moment last Wednesday contained a provision for 28 millions in additional school aid.

The seriousness of the school problem was pointed up in a survey released last Tuesday by the State School Directors Assn.

The report estimated the schools would lose 3 1/2 million dollars in state aid through a recent reorganization of real estate by the Tax Equalization Board. State aid is based upon the board's assessments.

Senate Republicans have asked tax board members to appear before the GOP caucus Tuesday to explain the new assessments, the first comprehensive survey of state real estate values since 1952.

Hypothetical Total Reaches 54,900,000

WASHINGTON, (AP)—The make-believe national death toll in last October's hypothetical nuclear attack on the United States was increased by nearly six million recently to 54,900,000.

Recently the Office of Civil and Defense Mobilization reported figures which, adjusted to the present population of 177 million, indicated the imaginary attack took 48,900,000 lives.

The revised count resulted from applying a new formula to measure the intensity of early radiation near the scene of a nuclear explosion.

Data Study

All the data is being studied by a Senate-Atomic Energy Subcommittee which Friday ended week-long hearings on the possible effect of H-bomb attacks on this country.

Chairman Chet Holifield (D-Calif.) of the subcommittee declared that the government has not recognized its "constitutional obligation to protect its citizens from enemy attack."

There has been testimony that a nationwide system of shelters would cost up to 20 billion dollars.

A set of civil defense estimates based on the cities' 1950 census, showed that in the make-believe nuclear attack last October New York City suffered the most casualties, and Baltimore the most in proportion to size. Chicago came out with the least, proportionately.

Gov. Long At Service In Church

EL PASO, TEX. (AP)—Gov. Earl K. Long of Louisiana

twitched a package of cigarettes in his hands nervously Sunday as a preacher thundered, "You can't live with the devil six days and live with the Lord on Sunday."

After the 35-minute sermon in the First Baptist church by Dr. W. Herschel Ford, Long commented: "That's good preaching. It was only 35 minutes long. In the country they used to preach for an hour and a half. That's too long for an old man to sleep."

Mysterious Plans

Long told newsmen after his church attendance that his plans for the next few days are a mystery.

"I'm leaving here in a balloon," he said.

"Contact me in Kansas City July 25," he continued. "I'm going to try to lose myself between now and then. I'm going to fly to Monterrey (Mexico)—don't ask me what kind of a plane but it's not a state plane."

Dr. M. O. Miller of New Orleans, who has been with Long during the governor's visit to El Paso, said he was returning to New Orleans by plane.

The doctor issued this bulletin: Gov. Long's condition is satisfactory. He slept well, "feels well, blood pressure, pulse and temperature within normal limits."

Stroudsburg Resident Wins Patent

GEORGE J. FREY, 610 Sarah St., Stroudsburg was the recipient on June 23, 1959 of United States patent number 2,891,535, entitled "Air Heating Unit".

This invention pertains to a novel and improved apparatus for heating a dwelling house or other enclosed area. It operates by receiving a supply of cool fresh air from the atmosphere, heating the same and discharging it into the area to be conditioned.

The heating of the air is accomplished as a result of its contact with the fire tubes through which the hot gases of combustion from the burner of the equipment pass. As advantageous features, the apparatus is simple in construction, efficient in operation and relatively low in cost.

The air heating device of Frey's invention includes a fire box and burner for burning the fuel. The gaseous products of combustion rise upwardly through vertically arranged sets of fire tubes with which the relatively cool air, drawn from the atmosphere by means of a fan, comes into contact. The heated air is discharged through openings in the top of the heating apparatus.

Important Feature
As an important feature, the fire tubes of the assembly are inclined so that a portion of the surface of each of them is much hotter than the remaining surface; and by having the incoming cool air first contact such hot surfaces a highly efficient heating action is achieved.

It should be noted that all of the cool air in the room or area being heated is forced outside of such area or is transferred to an enclosure not requiring heat, such as an attic or the like. Thus there is no recirculation of stale or germ-laden air through the living quarters or other area being heated, and consequently, the occurrence of illness during cold periods, due to recirculation of the same air, is reduced.

In other words, in accordance with Frey's invention, filtered fresh air is heated, distributed and changed numerous times a day, an arrangement that is considered much more healthful than recirculated air.

The application for that patent, which consists of three claims of originality, was filed on Feb. 8, 1957.

Maybe Men Will Have Waistline

hair and face when worn up.

Not All Model Figures
Vera Stewart realizes not all people in the world are shaped like models and she cares about the size 20's. She also cares about the women who minds the cold with cashmere sweaters not only matching but complementing the design of her dresses.

Edward Abbott's cafe coat costume dresses all come with built-in bras. They'd have to. The bodies are of the waistline in back with straps following the curve of the shoulder blades, twist and fastened with diamonds.

A group of designers from the Russian Exhibit joined us for the Brannell showing. What the saw was a good representation of the things we have been seeing all week: longer, bigger sleeves, fur trimmings, fitted jackets, wider tops and a covered-up look for evening and fine fabrics. Brannell's gimmick was the unusual placement of pockets in day ware, and a white mink bodice on an evening dress of black velvet.

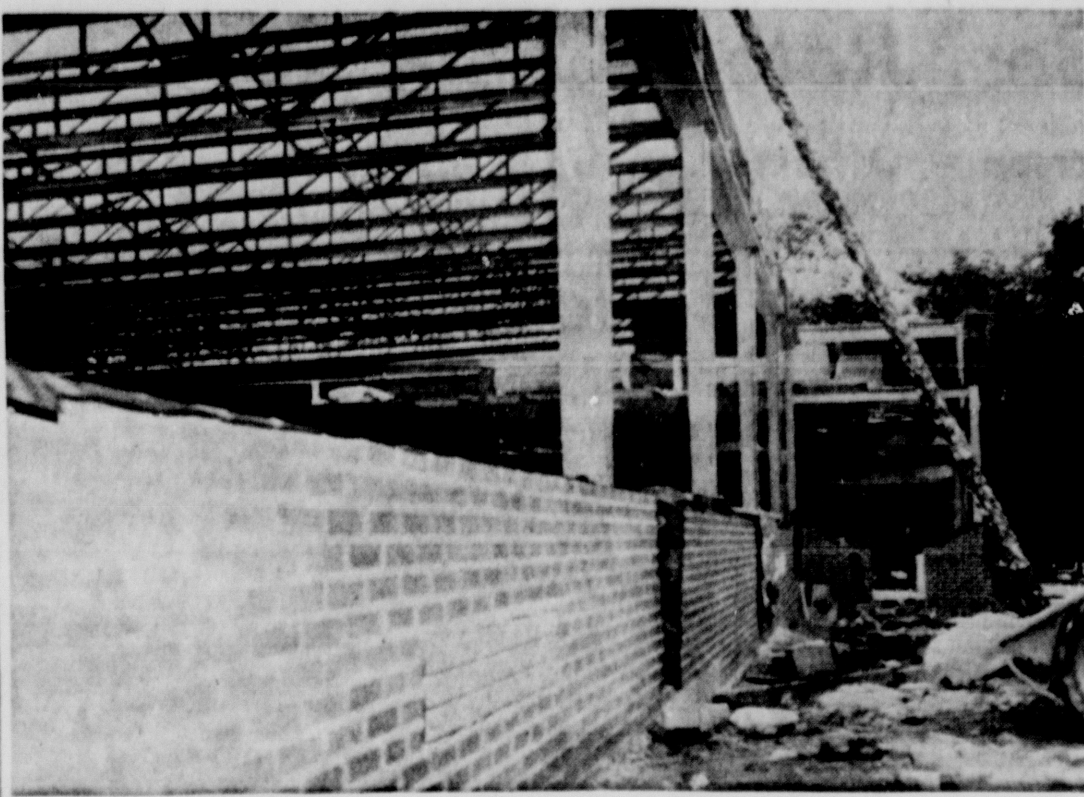

I don't know what the Russian's thought about the prices—if they understand them Brannell is hailed as a "moderate price couture designer" ($265 is moderate, I suppose if it looks like the $600 one). The leather industry came up with what seems like a good idea. On the shoes which they are exhibiting in Russia they are giving not prices but the equivalent of prices in work hours. That even Russians can understand.

Sort of scares me to think of couture fashions in the terms of my work hours, but then I'm not buying them—just admiring.

The type of things fashion editors buy and wear was demonstrated beautifully in the R & K Originals shown at the breakfast. High fashions and fine fabrics translated in the terms of you and me. Dresses at $25 and under. They demonstrated that while the couture designers set the pace, the budget-minded copies are the ones most of America wears.

It also demonstrated that a knowledge of high fashion is a big help in choosing the low-budget wardrobe.

45 Hear Severud At Art Center

SOME 45 persons gathered at the Pocono Art Center Saturday night to hear Fred M. Severud discuss new architectural forms of today.

Slides were shown of the Livestock Judging Pavilion in Raleigh, N. C., the Berlin Congress Hall in West Berlin, Germany and the Yale Hockey Rink. Severud explained that these unique buildings are built on the principle of cable suspension. Close cooperation between visionary architects and the consulting engineers was necessary in the construction of these buildings.

Severud concluded with the statement that now everything in architecture will take on a different view and that the buildings he has helped construct were attainments in that they symbolize the urge toward something better.

1958 Births Show Decline In County

(Record Harrisburg Bureau)

HARRISBURG — Births in Monroe County were on the downswing last year — to the tune of two less than the 811 recorded during 1957, the State Department of Health said today in a just completed statistical recap of the 12-month period.

Under the circumstances, said the department, the birth rate for the county now stands at 20.5 per 1,000 population.

An interesting breakdown of the 809 live births recorded for the county during the year shows that in 257 cases the birth was a "first" for the family; in 214 cases it represented a second child and 151 cases a third child.

Births during the year increased the number of four-child families in the county by 95, five-child families by 61, six-child families by 23 — and over six, by 28.

Looking at it another way, 31.8 percent of all the births in the county during the year were family "firsts"; 26.4 percent represented the second child in the family; 18.7 percent, the third child; 11.7 percent, the fourth child; 5.1 percent, the fifth child; 2.8 percent, the sixth child — and 3.5 percent, over six.
